

90-DAY CONVOCONTROL TRAINING SYSTEM

The Companion Training System for Questions Close Deals

Turn questions, silence, and presence into real-time conversation control.

"You do not rise to the occasion in a conversation.
You fall back on how you have trained."

CORE RULE

This is not a workbook. This is a training system. Every page is a rep. Every rep builds control. Every adjustment closes the gap between knowing and doing.

“Everything is sales — because everything is a conversation”

THIS IS NOT A WORKBOOK

---

Most people will use this like a notebook.

They'll write a few things down. Skip a few days. Come back when it's convenient.

And nothing will change.

Because this isn't about writing things down. It's about training a skill.

Most people don't lose conversations because they don't know what to say. They lose them because they can't execute in real time.

They talk when they should ask. They react when they should lead. They fill silence when they should hold it.

And by the time they realize it... the moment is gone.

That's not a knowledge problem. That's a training problem.

For the next 90 days, this is your training ground.

Every call is a rep. Every page is feedback. Every mistake is correction.

You don't rise to the moment. You fall back on how you've trained.

The only question is: will you train... or just take notes?

THE GAP

If you've ever thought, "I knew what to say but didn't say it," that is the gap. And that gap only closes through reps. Not reading. Not understanding. Training. So where are you actually getting those reps right now?

HOW TO USE THIS GUIDE

Read. Drill. Apply. Review. Repeat.

---

This is a system, not a notebook. You don't flip through it. You run it.

Start by reading the book completely. Not part of it — all of it.

As you read, write down the drills from each chapter. Don't try to master anything yet. Just understand what each drill is training.

Once you finish the book, the real work starts.

For the next 90 days, you will apply one skill at a time in real conversations.

Not ten changes. One.

Every call becomes a rep. Every rep builds awareness. Every adjustment builds control.

After each conversation, you review what happened. Not to judge it — but to train it.

Because in a real conversation, there's no time to think. Only how you respond.

This guide exists to train that response until it becomes automatic.

IMPORTANT

You will see improvement doing this on your own. But there is a limit. You can't see every mistake you're making in real time. You can't hear every subtle shift. You can't catch everything you missed. That is why this system was designed to pair with live training. Reps with feedback are what actually build the skill. How much faster would you improve if someone corrected you in real time?

90-DAY COMMITMENT

---

Before you go any further, stop.

Think about the last 30 days. How many conversations did you walk away from thinking, "I should have said something different"?

How many times were you close — but couldn't get it there?

How many opportunities slipped because you talked too much, missed the moment, or didn't ask the right question?

That's the gap. And it doesn't fix itself.

Because in the moment, there's no time to think. Only how you respond.

This only changes if you train it. Not once. Not when it's convenient. Daily.

For the next 90 days, this is your training ground.

Every call is a rep. Every mistake is feedback. Every adjustment is progress.

You are not trying to be perfect. You are training.

One call at a time. One adjustment at a time.

WHY MOST PEOPLE QUIT

Most people won't finish this. Not because it's hard. Because they don't stay consistent. Because they don't have accountability. Because they don't have feedback. If you're serious about building this skill, don't rely on willpower alone.

COMMITMENT

- ☐ I will use this system daily for the next 90 days.
- ☐ I will track real conversations, not hypothetical ones.
- ☐ I will focus on improving one thing every call.

PART ONE: CHAPTER TRAINING

Read the book. Capture the drill. Use it once before moving on.

---

CHAPTER 1 — THE GAME YOU'RE IN

---

Every conversation has direction. Most people don't see it, so they walk into calls reacting instead of leading. There is always influence, always movement, and always an outcome forming. The first shift is awareness: you are either guiding the conversation or being guided by it. Once you understand that every call is a game of direction, you stop hoping the conversation goes your way and start noticing where you can lead it.

USE THIS BEFORE YOU MOVE ON

Do not read the next chapter and call that progress. Use this in your next real conversation first. That is where the skill becomes real.

FIELD DRILL

Think about your last three conversations. Label each one as a Win, Draw, or Loss. Then write whether you showed up as the Leader or the Reactor.

Conversation 1 — Win / Draw / Loss:

---

---

---

Conversation 2 — Win / Draw / Loss:

---

---

---

Conversation 3 — Win / Draw / Loss:

---

---

---

What pattern do I notice about how I showed up?

---

---

---

ASK YOURSELF

You understand this concept. But can you execute it when the pressure is on? Where are you actually practicing this under real conditions — with someone watching, correcting, and pushing you to get sharper?

CHAPTER 2 — THE PSYCHOLOGY OF CONTROL

People do not follow logic first. They follow emotional safety. If someone feels rushed, pressured, or overwhelmed, they resist — even when your words make sense. Control comes from regulating the emotional state of the conversation so the other person can think clearly and move forward without feeling forced.

USE THIS BEFORE YOU MOVE ON

Do not read the next chapter and call that progress. Use this in your next real conversation first. That is where the skill becomes real.

FIELD DRILL

In your next conversation, lower your pace and tone by 50%. Watch what happens to their energy, resistance, and willingness to open up.

What was my energy going into the conversation?

---

---

---

What changed when I slowed down?

---

---

---

---

Did they match my energy? What did I notice?

---

---

---

---

ASK YOURSELF

If you tried this tomorrow and it didn't land perfectly — who would tell you what went wrong? Who is giving you real-time feedback so you don't keep repeating the same mistake?

CHAPTER 3 — EMOTIONAL VOLUME DIAL

---

Your tone controls the conversation more than your words. Most people speed up when pressure shows up. The person who stays steady becomes the emotional anchor. When your energy is grounded, the other person has something to match. That is leadership without force.

USE THIS BEFORE YOU MOVE ON

Do not read the next chapter and call that progress. Use this in your next real conversation first. That is where the skill becomes real.

FIELD DRILL

Before one conversation today, choose an intent word: calm, grounded, curious, or present. Carry that word in and notice whether the other person's energy shifts.

My intent word:

---

---

---

Where did I feel pressure to speed up or explain?

---

---

---

---

What happened when I stayed steady?

---

---

---

---

ASK YOURSELF

Knowing this and doing this are two different things. Reading builds awareness. Reps build skill. Where are you getting those reps right now — and who is holding you accountable?

CHAPTER 4 — THE POWER OF LISTENING

---

The person speaking the most has the least control. Listening is not passive. It is how you gather leverage. When people feel heard, they reveal more. What they reveal tells you where the conversation needs to go next. Most people listen just long enough to respond. You are training to listen for what actually matters.

USE THIS BEFORE YOU MOVE ON

Do not read the next chapter and call that progress. Use this in your next real conversation first. That is where the skill becomes real.

FIELD DRILL

After your next conversation, write down three things the other person said that actually mattered. Not what you wanted to hear — what gave you leverage.

Thing that mattered #1:

---

---

---

Thing that mattered #2:

---

---

---

Thing that mattered #3:

---

---

---

What did those answers reveal?

---

---

---

ASK YOURSELF

You've felt the moment slip before. You knew what to do but couldn't pull it off in real time. That gap doesn't close with more reading. It closes with practice under pressure. Where is that happening for you?

CHAPTER 5 — QUESTIONING AS DIRECTION

Statements create resistance. Questions create movement. When you tell someone something, they can debate it. When you ask the right question, they answer — and in answering, they move themselves forward. Control does not come from convincing. It comes from guiding attention. The buyer does the convincing. You ask the questions.

USE THIS BEFORE YOU MOVE ON

Do not read the next chapter and call that progress. Use this in your next real conversation first. That is where the skill becomes real.

FIELD DRILL

Take three statements you normally say and rewrite each one as a question.

Statement 1:

---

---

Question version 1:

---

---

---

Statement 2:

---

---

Question version 2:

---

---

---

Statement 3:

---

---

Question version 3:

---

ASK YOURSELF

How many times have you understood a concept but still defaulted to old habits when it mattered? That pattern only breaks with structured repetition and live correction. Are you getting that anywhere right now?

CHAPTER 6 — PRECISION QUESTIONS

Most people ask surface-level questions, so they get surface-level answers. Precision questions reveal motive. They move someone from abstract thinking into a clear picture of what they actually want. Your job is to ask the question that makes them create the picture.

USE THIS BEFORE YOU MOVE ON

Do not read the next chapter and call that progress. Use this in your next real conversation first. That is where the skill becomes real.

FIELD DRILL

Ask: "If you had the perfect solution, what would it look like?" Then: "What would that result mean for you?" Write down what they reveal.

What perfect outcome did they describe?

---

---

---

---

What did that outcome mean to them personally?

---

---

---

---

What did I learn that I could not have known by pitching?

---

---

---

---

ASK YOURSELF

If someone recorded your last five conversations and played them back — would you be proud of how you showed up? If not, what's your plan to change that?

CHAPTER 7 — THE SCIENCE OF SILENCE

Silence is where the truth shows up. When you ask a strong question and stay quiet, the other person works to fill the gap. What comes out is often less polished and more honest. The person who can sit in the gap longest holds the control.

USE THIS BEFORE YOU MOVE ON

Do not read the next chapter and call that progress. Use this in your next real conversation first. That is where the skill becomes real.

FIELD DRILL

Ask one strong question today, then say nothing. Hold the gap. Let the other person fill it before you speak.

Question I asked:

---

---

---

How long did I hold silence?

---

---

---

What did they say after the silence?

---

---

---

---

What truth came out because I waited?

---

---

---

---

ASK YOURSELF

Athletes don't get better by watching film alone. They get better by drilling under pressure with a coach watching. Your conversations are no different. Where is your training environment?

CHAPTER 8 — CONVERSATION ALCHEMY

---

Resistance is not rejection. It is information. Most people try to push through objections, which only creates more resistance. Conversation Alchemy is the skill of turning friction into curiosity. You do not defend. You explore. When you treat objections as clues, the conversation opens instead of closes.

USE THIS BEFORE YOU MOVE ON

Do not read the next chapter and call that progress. Use this in your next real conversation first. That is where the skill becomes real.

FIELD DRILL

Take one objection you hear often. Instead of defending, ask: "What's behind that concern?" Then listen for the real issue underneath.

Objection I heard:

---

---

---

Question I used instead of defending:

---

---

---

What was behind the concern?

---

---

---

---

Did resistance drop? What changed?

---

---

---

---

ASK YOURSELF

You can practice this alone and improve. But you'll also miss things you can't see. The subtle shifts, the timing mistakes, the moments you didn't even know you lost. Who is catching those for you?

CHAPTER 9 — DISCOVERY MASTERY

Most people stop too early. They get the first answer and move on. But the real conversation is usually underneath the first answer. Discovery Mastery is the ability to stay curious long enough to uncover what actually matters. When you ask one more question, and then one more, the truth starts to show up.

USE THIS BEFORE YOU MOVE ON

Do not read the next chapter and call that progress. Use this in your next real conversation first. That is where the skill becomes real.

FIELD DRILL

In your next conversation, ask three follow-up questions before responding, explaining, or pitching.

Initial answer they gave:

---

---

---

Follow-up question 1:

---

---

---

Follow-up question 2:

---

---

---

Follow-up question 3:

---

---

---

What did I uncover by staying curious?

---

---

---

---

If this skill could change your income, your relationships, and your confidence — why would you try to build it without feedback? What would change if someone corrected you in real time?

CHAPTER 10 — THE IDEAL OUTCOME VISUALIZATION

People do not decide based on logic alone. They decide based on what they can see and feel. When you help someone define their ideal outcome, you make the decision concrete. They stop talking about a vague problem and start describing the future they want. That picture becomes the frame for the rest of the conversation.

USE THIS BEFORE YOU MOVE ON

Do not read the next chapter and call that progress. Use this in your next real conversation first. That is where the skill becomes real.

FIELD DRILL

Ask: "What would the perfect outcome look like?" Then: "What would that mean for you?" Capture the exact words they use.

Their ideal outcome:

---

---

---

---

What that outcome means to them:

---

---

---

---

Exact phrase I should remember:

---

---

---

ASK YOURSELF

Are you consuming this material or are you actually training it? Because there's a massive difference between understanding a concept and being able to deploy it when someone pushes back.

CHAPTER 11 — APPROVAL FRAMES

---

Most decisions are not made alone. If you do not understand who else is involved, you do not control the outcome. Hidden decision-makers create hidden resistance. Approval Frames help you surface the people who influence the decision before they become the reason the deal stalls.

USE THIS BEFORE YOU MOVE ON

Do not read the next chapter and call that progress. Use this in your next real conversation first. That is where the skill becomes real.

FIELD DRILL

Ask: "Who else is involved in this decision?" Then follow the answer instead of assuming you know the approval path.

Who else is involved?

---

---

What influence do they have?

---

---

---

---

What needs to happen before a real decision can be made?

---

---

---

ASK YOURSELF

You don't get better at conversations by thinking about conversations. You get better by having them — with structure, feedback, and someone who can see what you can't. Where is that happening in your life right now?

CHAPTER 12 — COMPETITIVE ADVANTAGE

People are always comparing — even when they don't say it. If you don't know what they're comparing you to, you're guessing. Positioning without comparing means you don't attack alternatives. You ask questions that reveal the frame they're using to evaluate the decision.

USE THIS BEFORE YOU MOVE ON

Do not read the next chapter and call that progress. Use this in your next real conversation first. That is where the skill becomes real.

FIELD DRILL

Ask: "What are you comparing this to?" Then listen for what they value, fear, or misunderstand.

What are they comparing this to?

---

---

---

What does that comparison reveal?

---

---

---

---

How should I position based on what they said?

---

---

---

---

ASK YOURSELF

How much faster would you improve if every week someone showed you exactly where you lost control, missed the moment, or talked when you should have asked? That environment exists.

CHAPTER 13 — MICRO-YES MAPPING

Big decisions come from small agreements. When someone says yes to a sequence of clear, low-pressure questions, momentum builds. Micro-Yes Mapping is about creating alignment one step at a time so the final decision feels consistent with what they already said they wanted.

USE THIS BEFORE YOU MOVE ON

Do not read the next chapter and call that progress. Use this in your next real conversation first. That is where the skill becomes real.

FIELD DRILL

Ask three to five easy agreement questions before making the next ask. Track whether momentum increased.

Micro-yes question 1:

---

---

---

Micro-yes question 2:

---

---

---

Micro-yes question 3:

---

---

---

Did momentum increase? What did I notice?

---

---

---

---

ASK YOURSELF

You're building awareness right now. That's good. But awareness without correction just means you'll notice your mistakes more clearly — without fixing them. What's your plan for the correction part?

CHAPTER 14 — THE THERMOSTAT EFFECT

---

You are the emotional thermostat of the conversation. People borrow cues from the person who feels most grounded. If you are calm, they calm down. If you are reactive, they react. Setting the emotional climate is not manipulation. It is leadership. Control starts with your own state.

USE THIS BEFORE YOU MOVE ON

Do not read the next chapter and call that progress. Use this in your next real conversation first. That is where the skill becomes real.

FIELD DRILL

Before your next conversation, choose the emotional climate you want to set. Then hold that tone even if the other person shifts.

Emotional climate I chose:

---

---

---

Where was I tested?

---

---

---

---

Did they match my tone? What changed?

---

---

---

---

ASK YOURSELF

The people who master this skill fastest aren't the ones who read the most. They're the ones who practice the most — with someone watching. Is anyone watching your reps right now?

CHAPTER 15 — THE CONVODOJO

---

Skill does not come from understanding. It comes from repetition. This is where everything compounds: one drill, one conversation, one adjustment at a time. The workbook gives you the structure. Live training gives you pressure, practice, and feedback.

USE THIS BEFORE YOU MOVE ON

Do not read the next chapter and call that progress. Use this in your next real conversation first. That is where the skill becomes real.

FIELD DRILL

For one full day, track every conversation as training. After each one, write the pattern you noticed and the adjustment you would make next time.

Most common pattern I noticed today:

---

---

---

---

Where did I default under pressure?

---

---

---

---

What drill do I need most right now?

---

---

---

---

ASK YOURSELF

This drill works. But it works ten times faster when someone is there to catch what you missed, challenge your assumptions, and push you past comfortable. Where are you getting that level of training?

PART TWO: 90-DAY DRILL SYSTEM

Four drills. Real conversations. One adjustment at a time.

---

THE 90-DAY FIELD TRAINING PLAN

One skill at a time. One real conversation per day.

---

Run one drill at a time. Do not rotate daily. Spend 18 consecutive days on each drill so the skill becomes automatic before you move on. Use a Call Review page after every meaningful conversation, regardless of which drill you are currently training.

Days 1–18*DRILL 1 — Lead or React*Days 19–36*DRILL 2 — Tone & Pace Control*Days 37–54*DRILL 3 — Listening for Leverage*Days 55–72*DRILL 4 — The Science of Silence*Days 73–90*DRILL 5 — Speak in Questions

WHY THIS MATTERS

Most people move on too fast. They understand a skill before they can execute it. That is why their results don't change. Stay with one drill until it starts showing up automatically.

SOMETHING TO THINK ABOUT

This guide gives you the structure. But structure without feedback has a ceiling. How much faster would you improve if someone was watching your reps and correcting you in real time? That environment exists. Visit ConvoControl.com when you're ready for the next level.

DRILL 1 — STATEMENT TO QUESTION

Days 1-18

For the next 22 days, this is the only skill you are training. Most people try to convince. They explain, push, and try to make their point land. That creates resistance. This drill changes that. Instead of telling, you will guide. Every time you feel the urge to explain something, you will turn it into a question. When they say it, it carries more weight than when you say it.

YOUR GOAL

Use this in at least one real conversation per day. Catch yourself turning statements into questions. Not perfectly. Consistently.

THE HONEST TRUTH

Doing this once won't change anything. Doing this daily will. But the fastest way to improve is with someone watching — because most of what happens in a conversation is hard to catch on your own. Where are you getting that feedback right now?

PAUSE

If someone more experienced watched this conversation, what would they point out that I didn't notice?

DRILL 2 — ECHO + SILENCE

Days 19-36

---

For the next 22 days, this is your focus. Most people interrupt momentum. They hear something important and move on too fast. When someone says something meaningful, repeat the last few words back to them. Then stop. Say nothing. Hold the silence. What comes next is almost always more valuable than anything you could have added.

YOUR GOAL

Use this in at least one real conversation per day. Echo. Pause. Listen. This is where depth shows up.

THE HONEST TRUTH

Doing this once won't change anything. Doing this daily will. But the fastest way to improve is with someone watching — because most of what happens in a conversation is hard to catch on your own. Where are you getting that feedback right now?

DRILL 2 — ECHO + SILENCE — DAY 19

DRILL 3 — PRECISION OUTCOME QUESTIONS

Days 37-54

For the next 22 days, this is your focus. Most conversations stay on the surface. You will ask, "What would the perfect outcome look like?" Then, "What would that result mean for you?" These questions move people from vague thinking to real desire.

YOUR GOAL

Use this in at least one real conversation per day. Let them describe what they actually want. That is where control shifts.

THE HONEST TRUTH

Doing this once won't change anything. Doing this daily will. But the fastest way to improve is with someone watching — because most of what happens in a conversation is hard to catch on your own. Where are you getting that feedback right now?

Is there a moment I glossed over that actually mattered more than I realized?

DRILL 4 — EMOTIONAL CONTROL

Days 55-72

---

For the final 22 drill days, this is your focus. Control is not just what you say. It is how you show up. Before every conversation, take three slow breaths, set one word for your intent, and carry that word into the conversation. Your energy sets the tone. The tone shapes the outcome.

YOUR GOAL

Do this before at least one real conversation per day.

THE HONEST TRUTH

Doing this once won't change anything. Doing this daily will. But the fastest way to improve is with someone watching — because most of what happens in a conversation is hard to catch on your own. Where are you getting that feedback right now?

DRILL 4 — EMOTIONAL CONTROL — DAY 55

Use this on at least one real conversation today.

---

Do the drill before you judge the drill. The goal is not perfect execution. The goal is one real rep and one honest adjustment.

Conversation:

---

---

---

My intent word:

---

---

---

My energy going in:

---

---

---

Did they match me? (Y/N):

---

---

---

Where I lost control:

---

---

---

---

ONE adjustment:

---

---

---

---

PAUSE

What did the other person reveal that I almost missed because I was focused on my own words?

DRILL 5 — SPEAK IN QUESTIONS

Days 73-90

Statements end conversations. Questions extend them. The moment you answer a direct question with a statement, you hand over control. The moment you answer a direct question with a question, you keep it. This is the skill that separates trained operators from people who just talk.

Most people speak in statements because it feels safer. A statement feels like proof. A question feels like risk. But proof closes thinking. Questions open it. When you speak in questions, the prospect keeps moving forward in their own mind — and you stay one step ahead of where the conversation is going.

Speaking in questions is not a script. It is a reflex. It is what happens when you have trained yourself to redirect, to loop back, and to convert objections into curiosity instead of arguments.

THE THREE MOVES OF SPEAKING IN QUESTIONS

1. REDIRECT.

When a prospect asks something that pulls the conversation off course, you redirect with a question that brings the focus back to what matters.

2. LOOP BACK.

When you feel control slipping, you loop back to something they already said and turn it into the next question. Their words become your leverage.

3. CONVERT OBJECTIONS.

When resistance shows up, you don't defend. You ask a question that drops them into the emotion underneath the objection — where the real decision actually lives.

YOUR GOAL

Replace at least one statement with and redirect with a question in every real conversation today.

THE HONEST TRUTH

Speaking in questions sounds simple until the pressure is on. Then your old habits take over — you explain, you defend, you fill the silence. That reflex does not break by reading about it. It breaks under live pressure, with someone catching the moments you cannot catch yourself. Where are you getting that kind of feedback right now? This is exactly why we have the ConvoDojo! Live practice, on the spot, with pressure.

DRILL 5 — SPEAK IN QUESTIONS — DAY 73

Use this on at least one real conversation today.

---

After your next conversation, walk back through the moments that mattered. Train the reflex by writing what you did, what you missed, and what the better question would have been.

FIELD DRILL

What question in that conversation did you redirect with another question instantly?

---

---

---

What question did you answer with a statement — and what question should it have been?

---

---

---

Did you handle an objection with a question that looped back into an emotion driver? Which one?

---

---

---

Where did you loop back to something they already said and turn it into your next question?

---

---

---

What direct question from the prospect could you have answered with a question to stay in control?

---

---

---

Which question moved them forward the most — and what made it land?

---

---

---

PAUSE

You have run more reps than most people will ever run. So now sit with this — quietly. Are you proud of how far you have come on your own? And if you are honest with yourself... is on your own really how the next level gets built?

DRILL 5 — SPEAK IN QUESTIONS — DAY 74

PAUSE

Look at the last conversation you had. You knew what to do. Did you do it? And the gap between knowing and doing — who in your life is actually helping you close it?

DRILL 5 — SPEAK IN QUESTIONS — DAY 77

Use this on at least one real conversation today.

---

After your next conversation, walk back through the moments that mattered. Train the reflex by writing what you did, what you missed, and what the better question would have been.

PAUSE

You have been training in silence. No one watching. No one correcting. Be honest — how much faster would you grow if someone could see what you cannot see in yourself?

DRILL 5 — SPEAK IN QUESTIONS — DAY 78

Use this on at least one real conversation today.

---

After your next conversation, walk back through the moments that mattered. Train the reflex by writing what you did, what you missed, and what the better question would have been.

PAUSE

The best operators in any field do not train alone. They train with someone better than them. So ask yourself — who is that person for you right now? And if the answer is no one... what does that cost you every week?

DRILL 5 — SPEAK IN QUESTIONS — DAY 79

Use this on at least one real conversation today.

---

After your next conversation, walk back through the moments that mattered. Train the reflex by writing what you did, what you missed, and what the better question would have been.

PAUSE

Reading built awareness. Reps built reflex. But there is a third layer most people never touch — live correction under pressure. Do you have access to that? And if not, how long are you willing to wait to get it?

DRILL 5 — SPEAK IN QUESTIONS — DAY 80

Use this on at least one real conversation today.

---

After your next conversation, walk back through the moments that mattered. Train the reflex by writing what you did, what you missed, and what the better question would have been.

---

---

---

Which question moved them forward the most — and what made it land?

---

---

---

PAUSE

Imagine the version of you that closes every conversation you are currently losing. What does it actually take to become that person? Be honest — is it more reading, or is it real coaching with someone watching every rep?

DRILL 5 — SPEAK IN QUESTIONS — DAY 81

Use this on at least one real conversation today.

---

After your next conversation, walk back through the moments that mattered. Train the reflex by writing what you did, what you missed, and what the better question would have been.

---

---

---

Which question moved them forward the most — and what made it land?

---

---

---

PAUSE

You have proven you will do the work. That puts you in rare air. So now answer this without flinching — are you growing as fast as you should be, or are you teaching yourself the same lesson over and over?

DRILL 5 — SPEAK IN QUESTIONS — DAY 82

Use this on at least one real conversation today.

---

After your next conversation, walk back through the moments that mattered. Train the reflex by writing what you did, what you missed, and what the better question would have been.

What direct question from the prospect could you have answered with a question to stay in control?

---

---

---

Which question moved them forward the most — and what made it land?

---

---

---

PAUSE

There is a moment in every conversation where the trained version of you and the untrained version of you separate. Who is helping you train the trained version? And if no one is... is that really good enough?

DRILL 5 — SPEAK IN QUESTIONS — DAY 83

Use this on at least one real conversation today.

---

After your next conversation, walk back through the moments that mattered. Train the reflex by writing what you did, what you missed, and what the better question would have been.

FIELD DRILL

What question in that conversation did you redirect with another question instantly?

---

What direct question from the prospect could you have answered with a question to stay in control?

---

---

---

Which question moved them forward the most — and what made it land?

---

---

---

PAUSE

You can feel the skill building. You can also feel the ceiling. Sit with that ceiling for a minute. Is it something you can break through alone — or is it the kind of ceiling that only breaks when someone else holds you accountable?

DRILL 5 — SPEAK IN QUESTIONS — DAY 84

Use this on at least one real conversation today.

---

After your next conversation, walk back through the moments that mattered. Train the reflex by writing what you did, what you missed, and what the better question would have been.

FIELD DRILL

What question in that conversation did you redirect with another question instantly?

---

---

---

Which question moved them forward the most — and what made it land?

---

---

---

PAUSE

Ask yourself something uncomfortable — if you had a coach this whole 90 days, where would you actually be right now? And what is the cost of going another 90 without one?

DRILL 5 — SPEAK IN QUESTIONS — DAY 85

Use this on at least one real conversation today.

---

After your next conversation, walk back through the moments that mattered. Train the reflex by writing what you did, what you missed, and what the better question would have been.

---

---

---

Which question moved them forward the most — and what made it land?

---

---

---

PAUSE

You have outlasted almost everyone who started something like this. Respect that. Then ask the harder question — does outlasting them mean you are getting better, or just that you are more disciplined while still missing the same things?

DRILL 5 — SPEAK IN QUESTIONS — DAY 86

Use this on at least one real conversation today.

---

After your next conversation, walk back through the moments that mattered. Train the reflex by writing what you did, what you missed, and what the better question would have been.

Which question moved them forward the most — and what made it land?

---

---

---

PAUSE

The conversations you replay in your head — the ones you wish you could run back — what would it be worth to have someone walk through them with you in real time, not after the fact?

DRILL 5 — SPEAK IN QUESTIONS — DAY 87

Use this on at least one real conversation today.

---

After your next conversation, walk back through the moments that mattered. Train the reflex by writing what you did, what you missed, and what the better question would have been.

PAUSE

You have practiced alone. You have improved alone. But the next jump — the one that makes everything different — is rarely made alone. Who in your world is qualified to take you there?

DRILL 5 — SPEAK IN QUESTIONS — DAY 88

Use this on at least one real conversation today.

---

After your next conversation, walk back through the moments that mattered. Train the reflex by writing what you did, what you missed, and what the better question would have been.

PAUSE

Every elite performer eventually hires a coach. Not because they are bad — because they got too good to see their own gaps. Are you at that point yet? And if you are... what are you waiting for?

DRILL 5 — SPEAK IN QUESTIONS — DAY 89

Use this on at least one real conversation today.

PAUSE

Sit with this one. The skill you are building changes your income, your influence, and the way people respond to you. What is that actually worth — and what would it be worth to compress the timeline?

DRILL 5 — SPEAK IN QUESTIONS — DAY 90

Use this on at least one real conversation today.

After your next conversation, walk back through the moments that mattered. Train the reflex by writing what you did, what you missed, and what the better question would have been.

PAUSE

You are five days from the end of this. Ask yourself the real question — when this workbook closes, what continues? Who is going to keep pushing you when there is no page in front of you to write on?

90 DAYS DONE

The end of the workbook is not the end of the work.

Ninety days ago, you made a commitment. You showed up. You ran the reps. You sat with the moments that did not go your way and trained them anyway. That puts you in a category most people never reach. Now sit with the harder questions. The ones that do not have a script. The ones that decide what the next ninety days actually look like.

WHERE ARE YOU REALLY?

Where do you feel you are right now in your skill — honestly?

---

---

---

How do you feel about the way you show up in real conversations today?

---

---

---

Where does your ranking sit on your team compared to where you want it to be?

---

---

---

What is still happening in your conversations that you cannot fix on your own?

---

---

---

If someone trained you under real pressure every week, how much faster would you close that gap?

---

---

---

WHAT NEXT?

The operators who go furthest do not finish on their own. They train under pressure, with feedback, with people who can see what they cannot. If something inside you knows the next level is not built alone, that signal is worth following. Scan the code. Start the conversation.

READY FOR THE NEXT LEVEL?

Scan to see what real-time training looks like —
and to start a conversation about where you go from here.
